

A popular soil conservation indigenous method on the small site scale is the waffle garden. I visited the Zuni Youth Enrichment Project and helped construct a waffle garden. The youth leaders spent a long time talking with me on how native horticulture practices reinforce meaningful connections with their heritage. My above illustration echoes their sentiments of a past to present continuity of methods that restore both soil and historical meaning.